Leadership is about inspiring others to achieve a vision or shared goal. It is about who you are as a person and your ability to influence, motivate and enable others.

Management is about executing a vision in a systematic way through directing people. Reliant on control, it centres on systems and processes and depends on the planning, allocation and measurement of work and resources.

Leadership and management must go hand-in-hand. In these programs, you will learn the art and science of both.

Institute of Project Management graduates are decision makers; they are the industry leaders, problem solvers and innovators of the 21st century.
