

What should I bring to class?

A laptop – once enrolled, you will be able to download the digital resources that support the day's learning; alternately, you can download and print the paper versions if you are more comfortable working with the old-school tools of the trade.

If you'd like to bring a keep-cup and/or refillable bottle, we provide all-day tea, coffee and water; and if you don't want to bring your own lunch, there are plenty of nearby food options.

PROJECT LEADERSHIP

<https://institute.pm>

Going beyond task and team management, project leadership asks you to harness the competing energies of a unique, complex and unfamiliar group of stakeholders to achieve a specific outcome with limited time and resources.

It is leadership on steroids, where a single misstep can have massive and disproportionate consequences.

Throw away the textbook – project leadership is nothing like the ‘leadership-as-usual’ they teach in business school!

Why should I take this Masterclass?

What will I learn in one day?

We get that adults have distinctly different motivations to learn, so we ensure our content is relevant, learners are engaged, learning processes are active and delivery is centred around you.

Whether it be inspiring groups, resolving conflict or leading other leaders, good leadership depends upon critical self-reflection and an appreciation of what each unique situation demands.

In this highly interactive one-day Masterclass, we leverage the experience of the room from all leadership perspectives to arrive at a shared ideal of the ‘perfect’ project leader.

Who will be teaching me?

Our Certified Project Trainers are:

proven industry expert with over 10 years’ practical experience leading complex projects, programs and portfolios of work inspiring communicators creative and critical thinkers, and trained educators, facilitators and mentors.

Importantly, they are not professional lecturers who only learned project management from text-books – they superimpose on the content a wealth of project skill and experience from all stakeholder perspectives that bring project management to life.
